Message

The Ministry of Labour and Employment (MoLE) is entrusted with the responsibility of overseeing a wide range of services and programs aimed at improving the lives of millions of workers. From labour welfare, social security to employment services, MoLE touches upon various aspects that are fundamental to the well-being of our citizens. In recent years, the paradigm of public service delivery has evolved, and the concept of convergence has emerged as a powerful tool to enhance the effectiveness of our endeavours.

Convergence, in the context of our Ministry, refers to the seamless integration and coordination of services and resources across different verticals and organizations. It is about breaking down silos and working collaboratively towards a common goal – providing the best services and support to our citizens. The convergence in functioning of different organizations of the Ministry can help in improving efficiency, enhanced service delivery, better outreach, evidence-based policy making, etc. The goal is to embrace the 'Whole of Government' approach in service delivery.

I am pleased to see that our Ministry has already started making significant strides in this direction. However, there is much work to be done at the field level where every employee is expected to imbibe the spirit of convergence to ensure holistic service to our stakeholders. I am sure that the convergence handbook prepared by the Ministry will help in achieving absolute convergence in all the organizations as well as in the services offered by them for the benefit of both employers and employees.

I congratulate the team of officers who contributed in preparing this handbook under the leadership of Smt. Arti Ahuja, Secretary (Labour and Employment) and I look forward to witnessing the transformative impact of convergence on the services we provide.

Foreword

Convergence means many things to many people, especially in government. However, no matter what the definition each one of use adopts, at its heart lies the spirit of service- who are we all working for? How can we make their life better through our work? Can we go the extra mile to help those in need? If we answer these questions honestly, looking deep within ourselves, we will find the answer- and the answer lies in working together- not just within government, but with all our stakeholders. A simple way of course is to recall Gandhiji's talisman- "Whenever you are in doubt, or when the self becomes too much with you, apply the following test. Recall the face of the poorest and the weakest man [woman] whom you may have seen, and ask yourself, if the step you contemplate is going to be of any use to him [her]. Will he [she] gain anything by it"? Asking this question will tell us that we cannot and should not walk alone- if we are to be effective and increase our outreach, all of us need to work with each other and tap each other's unique mandates and expertise.

We in the Ministry of Labour and Employment walk the fine line between protecting and promoting the interest of workers while ensuring that we do not stand in the way of our country's growth- which will soon become the third largest economy of the world. We are mandated to ease and facilitate the work and lives of both our partners- the workers and employers.

Meanwhile we need to be aware that the world of work itself is changing. Many new jobs are getting created while old ones are getting lost. We need to be abreast of these challenges and be agile in our response. Covid has already taught us the lesson of interconnectedness and how we can overcome any situation if we work together. It would be foolhardy to forget that. Our G20 spirit of “Vasudhaiva Kutumbakam” also emphasized that.

Working together, forgetting our hierarchies and our pay levels and such other distinctions is the call of the hour. We need to converge to optimally utilize our resources and provide the best services. Working with other partner verticals within the Ministry will in fact enrich and help our own service delivery. The Ministry of Labour and Employment is one, composed of all its parts- each of whom play an important role, and the model of convergence and coherence we set now should become the template for others to follow. Let us not forget: Together Everyone Achieves More [TEAM].

This handbook itself is the result of convergence. Many ideas have come from young officers across board during and after the first workshop we had under the Chairmanship of Hon'ble Minister. The Bureau Heads of the Ministry have sat across the table many times and fine-tuned to arrive at the current version. I am sure the officers in the field will set a new standard in working together, and the results will be seen in better service delivery for our stakeholders.

Wishing everyone all the very best!

Preface

In the vibrant tapestry of India's growth and progress, the Ministry of Labour & Employment stands as a beacon, safeguarding the rights and interests of the working people. As one of the oldest Ministries of the Government of India, our mission has been to protect the vulnerable, empower the disadvantaged, and foster a conducive work environment that drives productivity. In this pursuit, we recognize the importance of evolving landscape of our interconnected world and the imperative need for synergy among diverse verticals and organisations of our Ministry.

This document signifies a pivotal moment in our journey. It embodies our commitment to convergence — a process that encapsulates the spirit of collaboration, integration, and shared purpose. Convergence, in our context, means the harmonious amalgamation of efforts, knowledge, and resources across various verticals within the Ministry of Labour and Employment. It is not just an administrative strategy but a testament to our dedication to effective governance and streamlined operations.

Within the pages of this handbook readers will find a comprehensive blueprint for achieving this convergence. We delve into the intricacies of monthly meetings, joint tours, and collaborative initiatives among the different verticals of our Ministry. These include: the Directorate General of Employment (DGE), Chief Labour Commissioner (CLC) (Central), Directorate General Factory Advice Service & Labour Institute (DGFASLI), Labour Bureau, Directorate General of Mines Safety (DGMS), Directorate General, Labour Welfare (DGLW), Employees Provident Fund Organisation (EPFO), Employees State Insurance Corporation (ESIC), Dattopant Thengadi National Board for Workers Education and Development (DTNBWED), and V.V. Giri National Labour Institute (VVGNI), each of which plays an unique role in shaping the labour landscape of our nation. This document underscores how their collective efforts can create a transformative impact.

Our vision is not confined to the boundaries of offices or legal frameworks; it extends to the lives of every worker. We emphasize not only the significance of planning and discussions but also the pivotal role of joint activities in uplifting the workforce. Additionally, we recognize the need for inclusivity, ensuring that our extensions benefit every individual, who contributes to the nation's progress.

As we navigate the dynamic currents of globalization and liberalization, our commitment to welfare and social security remains unwavering. Labour laws, both enacted and implemented, serve as the bedrock upon which our convergence efforts stand. We acknowledge the pivotal role played by State Governments, for labour is not just a subject of governance but a shared responsibility.

In the spirit of this document, we urge every stakeholder from policymakers to workers to embrace this culture of convergence. Together, we can create an environment where every worker's rights are protected, where opportunities are equal, and where progress is inclusive. With this document, we set forth on a collective journey toward a brighter and fairer future for our workforce and our nation.

The Code on Wages, 2019 was notified on 8th August 2019 and the remaining three Codes were notified on 29th September 2020.

1.5.1. Salient features of the Labour Codes

1.5.1.1. The Code of Wages, 2019

- i. A statutory right has been created for minimum wages to all workers whether in organised or unorganised sector as against scheduled employment at present.
- ii. Provisions related to timely payment of wages and authorised deductions from wages, which are presently applicable only in respect of employees drawing wages of twenty-four thousand rupees per month, has been made applicable to all employees irrespective of wage ceiling.
- iii. A statutory concept of 'Floor Wage' has been introduced.
- iv. Method of fixation of minimum wage rates simplified.

1.5.1.2. The Industrial Relations Code, 2020

- i. The concept of fixed term employment (FTE) introduced which is a win-win situation where an employee gets all the benefits of a permanent

- employee and the employer can engage a worker without intervention of a contractor. An FTE worker will be entitled to all benefits like a permanent worker. Further, an FTE worker has also been allowed benefit of proportionate gratuity even if the contract is for a period of one year.
- ii. A long pending demand of the trade unions to provide them statutory recognition has been considered by including a concept of 'Negotiating Union' and 'Negotiating Council'. It will facilitate negotiation between employer and employees.
 - iii. To facilitate ease of doing business and catalyse the creation of employment opportunities, the Code removes requirement of prior permission of appropriate Government for seeking permission for lay-off, retrenchment and closure of a factory, mine and plantation having less than 300 workers. The Code increases the threshold for applicability of the chapter related to Standing Order to 300 against 100 at present.
 - iv. Requirement of a notice period of 14 days has been incorporated for strikes and lockouts in any establishment. This criterion, at present, is only for public utility services.
 - v. The definition of "strike" has been amended to include "mass casual leave" also within its ambit.

1.5.1.3. The Code on Social Security, 2020

- i. The coverage of Employees' State Insurance Corporation (ESIC) can be extended pan India to all establishments employing 10 or more employees as against notified districts/ areas.
- ii. The Code envisages extension of ESIC benefits to the employees working in establishments with less than 10 employees on voluntary basis and on mandatory basis through notification by the Central Government for employees working in hazardous industries. Further, ESIC coverage can also be extended to plantations on option exercised by the employer.
- iii. To cater to emerging new forms of employment, new definitions like of aggregator, gig worker, platform worker have been introduced. A small contribution from aggregator between one to two per cent of turnover subject to limit of five per cent payable to gig and platform workers has been introduced.
- iv. A Social Security Fund is proposed to be established to formulate schemes for social security to the workers of unorganised sector.

1.5.1.4. The Occupational Safety, Health and Working Conditions Code, 2020

- i. The Code rationalises the compliance mechanism with one license, one registration and one return for the establishments.

- ii. Definition of migrant worker has been widened to include those workers who would be directly employed by the employer, besides by the contractor. Further, a migrant, who comes on his own, in the destination state, can declare himself a migrant worker by registering on an electronic portal on the basis of self-declaration seeded with Aadhaar.
- iii. Employer to provide free of cost annual health check-up for employees above the specified age working in certain type of establishments.
- iv. Issue of appointment letter has been made mandatory for all employees, covered under the Code which will promote formalisation of employment.
- v. The Code envisages employment of women in all establishments covering all types of works. Women are now entitled to work at night, subject to their consent, with provisions of safety, holidays, working hours or any other condition as prescribed by appropriate Government.

Background and Need for Convergence

The Government of India has been undertaking convergence amongst its ministries, policies and schemes as part of 'Whole of Government' approach for system wide reforms for more effective, efficient delivery of public services and enhanced coverage. The Ministry of Labour and Employment has also been focussing on convergence of various schemes for the welfare of the workers.

A deeper analysis needs to be undertaken as to why convergence is required specifically in the context of Ministry of Labour and Employment.

The Ministry of Labour and Employment provides a gamut of services to workers and employers to facilitate sustainable development for all. The attached offices, subordinate offices and autonomous organisations of the Ministry are its organs through which these services are delivered to these groups.

The congruence in services and target groups calls for collaboration and coordination amongst these organs. However, since their inception, most of these institutions have been functioning within their respective remit taking independent paths to realise their assigned goals. Though the organisations have been largely effective at delivering these services within the available means, resources, and technology; convergence among these organisations would greatly enhance their effectiveness and efficiency.

Illustration A provides valuable insights into the necessity and extent of convergence, considering the current relationships among these organizations, their services/functions, and the target groups. Employer and workers are required to approach and access multiple organisations for similar services through several interfaces or points of contacts. There are several similarities and intersections in the services provided and the groups targeted by these organizations which include both formal and informal sector. These services can be clubbed into few categories based on their similarities:

- quasi-judicial functions and enforcement of labour laws
- provision of social security
- occupational safety and health
- skilling, workers' education and employment services
- data collection, statistical analysis and research

Accessing several offices for similar services is challenging for micro-enterprises, lesser skilled labour, especially contractual, casual or unorganised. As a result, these groups are not able to avail the benefits of the existing resources, systems, and schemes.

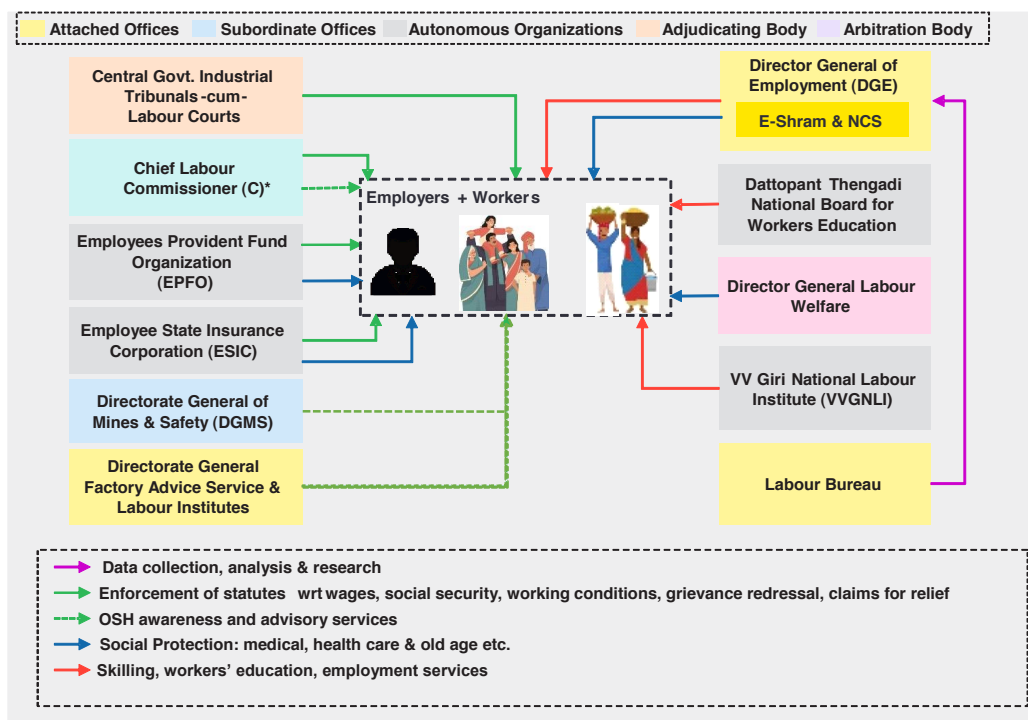

Illustration -A: Existing set up of Ministry of Labour and Employment

Illustration B shows that greater convergence amongst the Ministry's organisations to build and provide a bouquet of similar services would lead to their seamless delivery and enhancing ease of doing business for employers. The illustration below depicts post convergence delivery of services with more optimised interface and interactions of target groups with the Ministry's agencies.

The need for convergence can also be argued from the existing policymaking, implementation and monitoring set up of the Ministry. The Ministry with its diverse functional areas including policy development, service delivery, regulatory compliance, research, monitoring, and resource management, is a vast and complex entity. The Ministry's divisions and offices need to converge for attaining the overlapping goal of labour welfare by better service delivery.

The Ministry can leverage data from all functional areas to make more informed decisions through integration of data across organisations. This data-driven approach can lead to more effective policies and services. For example, comprehensive real-time data analytics cutting across organisations will boost development of better policies and services. This will ensure that the policies are responsive to the current needs of the workforce and employers.

Illustration B: Convergence in providing similar services and data integration

Convergence in information sharing with employers and workers will also lead to higher awareness amongst them regarding their rights, duties and procedures for claiming relief. This would enable them to approach the appropriate organisation for the specific relief or work in a timely manner. This would result in preventing wastage of time, money and other resources.

The Ministry and its organisations now have the requisite technology and resources which may be employed for greater coordination in several functions/ services for creating synergies. This synergistic collaboration will result in greater policy and action coherence. This will lead to achievement of the shared twin goals of labour welfare and facilitation of employers.

There are several benefits of convergence that all stakeholders (including field offices) can reap. It can eliminate redundancies, duplicities in efforts and streamline operations. This would lead to greater productivity. This would further allow enterprises to invest in their growth and adoption of better technology, while workers would invest in skill, health and children's education (reduced child labour). This proposition could be explained through a few instances:

- Sharing information about the grant of a contract labour license (which is issued to establishments with more than 20 laborers) by the Central Labour Commissioner (CLC) can be beneficial for the Employees' Provident Fund Organization (EPFO) and the Employees' State Insurance Corporation (ESIC) to expand their coverage within their respective schemes.
- Prior to the approval of closure or retrenchment in an establishment by the CLC, providing information about the settlement of any pending dues with EPFO or ESIC can help in reducing defaults within these organizations, which often require significant efforts to recover.
- The heads of officers from ESIC, EPFO, and CLC should be invited to job fairs organized by the National Career Service Centre. They can be requested to encourage and facilitate the mobilization of job opportunities for employers registered with them, thereby increasing both the quantity and quality of job placements through the National Career Service (NCS).
- Organizations under the Ministry of Labour and Employment (MoLE) can support the NCSC-DA by placing orders for products produced by differently abled candidates, thereby promoting their employment and economic independence.
- ESIC may consider conducting health camps for students affiliated with the NCSC-DA once a year, ensuring their well-being and access to healthcare services.
- Local office of ESIC may organise medical camps for the PwD trainees and SC/ST job seekers in the premises of NCSC for DA and SC/ST Centres.
- ESIC (Employee's State Insurance Corporation), EPFO (Employees' Provident Fund Organisation), DGMS (Directorate General of Mines Safety), and CLC(C) (Chief Labour Commissioner Central) may collaborate and share vital information obtained through their independent operations. These organizations can share copies of their respective inspection reports, particularly when violations such as non-payment of wages, overtime discrepancies, EPF (Employee Provident Fund), ESIC (Employee State Insurance Corporation), and related issues are identified. This mutual exchange would bolster the prevention and detection of violations.

This would lead to more efficient and effective solutions for addressing breaches, providing necessary relief to workers, and taking legal action against offenders.

- Similarly, CLC(C) office can share information to EPFO and ESIC and DGMS officers as soon as industrial disputes, strikes and lockouts involving issues related to ESIC, EPFO and mines safety and welfare etc. This would enable other organizations to take coordinated action with the CLC(C) office to resolve these disputes.

Convergence within the Ministry is a transformational step towards a more integrated and efficient public service system. It will enable to better serve the public, make informed decisions, and pro-actively adapt to the changing needs of the digital age. While this transformation comes with its challenges, the Ministry is committed to navigating these changes with diligence and foresight.

Achieving Convergence through Collaboration and Joint Initiatives

In today's dynamic and interconnected world, achieving convergence among various verticals at field level is crucial for effective governance and streamlined operations. Convergence in the present context refers to the process of integrating efforts, knowledge, and resources of different field offices of MoL&E to achieve common goals and objectives. This chapter outlines the Standard Operating Procedures (SOPs) for achieving convergence at the field level through regular monthly meetings, joint tours, and collaborative efforts among verticals. The SOPs will cover key aspects such as planning, discussions, joint activities, and extensions for both organised and unorganised workers.

The Ministry had organized a brainstorming workshop during 16-17 May 2023 at the V.V. Giri National Labour Institute to develop an Action Plan for Convergence. The workshop was attended by fifty officers from different verticals of the Ministry including ESIC, EPFO, DGLW, CLC, DTNBWED, DGFASLI, VVGNI, DGMS, LB and DGE. After detailed deliberations, the workshop culminated in preparation of an action plan for promoting convergence, developed by the officers nominated from different verticals.

The proposed action plan presented at the workshop was a step in the direction of bringing about seamless integration and coordination of services and resources across different verticals and organizations for promoting labour welfare. The concept of convergence through Standard Operating Procedures (SOPs) is rooted in the idea of creating a seamless and efficient network of our various organizations and services. It is about breaking down silos and working together to achieve a common goal: to provide our citizens with the best possible assistance and support. These organizations often work in isolation, resulting in complexities and duplications of effort. Moreover, we may be able to use strength of one organization to facilitate solutions to the issues of other organization.

The genesis of the Standard Operating Procedures (SOPs) presented in the chapter for achieving convergence at the field level through collaborative efforts amongst verticals had its roots in this workshop and the extensive deliberations. The SOPs will cover key aspects such as planning, discussions, joint activities and outreach events for both organized and unorganized workers. By implementing SOPs, we can aim to streamline these processes and provide a one-stop solution for our citizens.

Annexure 3

Case Study

Savita works in a medium-sized chemical factory in “x” district of “Y” state. She moved here with her family from “Z” state three years ago. She is accompanied by her husband Satish, and two children, son named Sonu aged three years, and a daughter Sonali aged seven years.

The family stays in a small shed in a slum close to the factory. The work in the factory is hazardous, but they don’t know what other employment opportunities are there for them so Savita and Satish continue working there.

Recently, while working, Savita inhaled some toxic fumes and fainted. She was admitted to the nearest Govt. health center by her supervisor in the factory, but after that, the family had to bear all expenses for her stay of three days, including medicines.

However, her nausea and head reeling still continue, and she feels weak all the time. She does not have access to any hospital on her own as the nearest health center of the State Govt. is 10 kms. away. It is her husband who will have to take her and that would mean loss of a day’s wages for both of them. Thus, she keeps silent and bears her problems.

The family also has not much savings and Savita does not have any bank account from which she can withdraw money and go to a private doctor nearby.

Savita and Satish know that some people in the factory have cards and can go to the ESIC dispensary 5 kms. away. They have also heard that some people have a fund where the employer also deposits money and their savings can increase. However, people like them have no access to these facilities as they are contractual workers. Once, Satish had asked the supervisor and factory owner to also enroll them, but he was told brusquely that they were free to go back to their state if they were so greedy.

Savita has also heard from other workers that their actual dues are not given in full to them. In fact, the contractor who got them this work takes a cut of Rs 2,000 from each of them every month, even though he is from their own village. She is not aware that there is a minimum wage - she is in any case not getting even that, plus there is the cut by the contractor from whatever little she and Satish get.

Even after working for three years, the family has very little savings as they also have to send money to their old parents who live in the village and are fully dependent on Savita and Satish. Besides, her children are not getting an education as the language of the govt primary school is different and her daughter does not understand it. She also has to take care of her younger brother when her mother is away for work.

Savita is becoming desperate and feels that there is nobody for her, and she is going to die like this, uncared and unwanted by anyone except her family.....

What can we as the labour Ministry do to help her? How can we prevent this from happening to other people? How can our own different wings come together for countless such people?
